Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board's failure to remove, or subject to a reasonable sunset requirement, the dual-class capital structure, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents, and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights.

Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the company's governing documents prohibit or restrict shareholders ability to amend the company bylaws. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. 2	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, significant salary increases should be linked to material changes in the business or in the role and responsibilities of executive directors. Moreover, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. All exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

5	Declassify the Board of Directors	Mgmt	For	For

Voter Rationale: The decision to declassify the board is laudable. The annual election of directors provides greater board accountability to shareholders and is appreciated.

6	Require a Majority Vote for the Election of Directors	SH	None	For
---	---	----	------	-----

Voter Rationale: Directors should receive majority support from shareholders in order to be elected. Plurality voting allows directors with only minority support to be appointed to the board. The board should take decisive action and introduce a binding majority voting standard.

Voter Rationale: Incentive plans that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. Furthermore, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. 1a	Elect Director Wendy A. Beck	Mgmt	For	Withhold
	Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

	Voter Rationale: The company has engaged the same audit firm for more than 20 years. There is value for investors in gaining new perspectives on finances and controls. Companies that have had the same auditor for a long period of time should consider a plan or tender process for bringing in a new auditing firm, ideally every 10 years.
3	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
	Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. In addition, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

1c	Elect Director Reeve B. Waud	Mgmt	For	Against
	Voter Rationale: Former employees or company founders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key board committees. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future. In addition, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. 	Voter Rationale: Incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. 	Voter Rationale: Directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, the board imposed a forum selection clause without prior shareholder approval. The corporate governance committee should oppose measures that restrict investors' access to courts, and reverse the measure or, at the very least, put the matter to an investor vote. Furthermore, the company faces significant controversies related to cases of alleged sexual harassment and discrimination. Activision is currently facing a lawsuit by the California Department of Fair Employment and Housing, is under investigation by the SEC for its handling of sexual harassment and discrimination, and recently settled a lawsuit filed by the EEOC. While the company has published a 2021 ESG report providing an update on 'Recent Workplace Concerns', the actions appear reactive. We have significant concerns surrounding the risk management and transparency of these issues, as well as additional potential scrutiny as the transaction with Microsoft continues. Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board's failure to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Also, executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. In addition, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. ---	--	------	-----	---------

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. In addition, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Voter Rationale: The remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. We note threshold is set at the 35th percentile, above the market norm, and target is set above median. We also encourage the company to provide more disclosure around pay program decisions.

4	Amend Proxy Access Right	SH	Against	For

Voter Rationale: Shareholders should have the right to reasonable access to the proxy, including the nomination of directors to the board. Such a practice encourages greater accountability of directors to the shareholders whose interests they represent. Similar proxy access in other developed markets has not lead to problematic elections, as some companies fear.

Voter Rationale: The remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. In addition, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Moreover, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Also, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Voter Rationale: The roles of Chairman and CEO are substantially different and generally should be separated. Separation of roles is important for securing a proper balance between executives and outside shareholders and preserving accountability. In addition, the board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate.

Voter Rationale: The company has engaged the same audit firm for more than 20 years. There is value for investors in gaining new perspectives on finances and controls. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval.

Voter Rationale: This plan could lead to excessive dilution. Also, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job.

Also, substantial pay-outs under incentive schemes should only be available for superior performance. Reaching threshold targets may warrant vesting of only a small proportion of incentive awards. Moreover, companies should consider introducing deferral element and clawback provisions to the short- and long-term incentive schemes in line with market best practice. Furthermore, companies should consider extending vesting periods for long-term incentive plans to 5 years or longer or as a minimum introduce an additional holding or deferral period.

2	Ratify Grant Thornton LLP as Auditors	Mgmt	For	For
Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Furthermore, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Also, significant salary increases should be linked to material changes in the business or in the role and responsibilities of executive directors. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Voter Rationale: This plan could lead to excessive dilution. Also, incentive plans that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. Moreover, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time.

All exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Voter Rationale: We expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our expectation is that there be at least one female director on the board for a company of this size. Also, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board's failure to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. In addition, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

Voter Rationale: There are concerns around severance, tax gross-ups, and equity award treatment. Although NEOs' potential cash severance amounts are not excessive, they represent a recent enhancement as NEOs previously were not entitled to change-in-control severance. Further, two NEOs are estimated to receive problematic excise tax gross-ups, also the result of a recent agreement. Lastly, NEOs' outstanding performance equity awards will convert at an assumed maximum performance level, without compelling rationale disclosed in the proxy.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. All exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Moreover, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. In addition, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Lastly, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Also, directors are expected to hold only a small number of directorships and ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their role properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. In addition, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Also, directors who represent major shareholders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key committees as their interests may not be well aligned with the wider group of shareholders.. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. In addition, this director is not sufficiently independent to serve as the independent lead director. Moreover, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board's failure to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Furthermore, executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. Specifically, for approving excessive equity awards to the Executive Chair.

	Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. In addition, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Moreover, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Furthermore, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

	Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Furthermore, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Furthermore, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Also, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time.

Voter Rationale: Severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. In addition, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Voter Rationale: The board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate. Also, we oppose dual class structures with impaired or enhanced voting rights. The company should amend its structure to allow for equal voting rights among shareholders. Moreover, the roles of Chairman and CEO are substantially different and generally should be separated. Separation of roles is important for securing a proper balance between executives and outside shareholders and preserving accountability.

1.3	Elect Director Miguel A. Capriles L.	Mgmt	For	For

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Given that there has been meaningful board refreshment during the year under review, support is warranted at this time and the matter will be kept under review.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Also, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. In addition, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Moreover, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

	Voter Rationale: Former employees or company founders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key board committees. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Moreover, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the bylaws. Also, the lack of a robust anti-pledging policy is concerning and raises questions about audit committee effectiveness in carrying out its risk oversight function. We encourage the committee to adopt a policy ideally prohibiting or severely restricting the pledging of company shares by executives.

Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders

Voter Rationale: Directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, we oppose dual class structures with impaired or enhanced voting rights. The company should amend its structure to allow for equal voting rights among shareholders.

Voter Rationale: Directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future. Given that the number of female directors has increased since the last AGM, we will keep this matter under review. In addition, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Lastly, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders.

Voter Rationale: All exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. 1.1	Elect Director Charles Giancarlo	Mgmt	For	Withhold
Voter Rationale: Executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. Also, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights.

Specifically, the board's failure to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the classified board and the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. In addition, executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. Specifically, the CEO received a sizable retention grant in addition to his annual LTI award, resulting in significantly elevated pay. Further concerns exist regarding the structure of performance-based equity awards and a lack of disclosure surrounding annual and long-term performance targets and achievements. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. In addition, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years.

Voter Rationale: The board should submit directors for re-election individually, rather than as a single slate and ensure that there is sufficient level of independence on the board. Moreover, executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. Also, the audit committee should be fully independent from the company and majority independent from its major shareholder(s). Further, in the context of increasingly complex international accounting standards, the audit committee benefits from members who have a good and recent understanding of the accounting rules and of the audit process. Lastly, the board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders

Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, this plan could lead to excessive dilution. In addition, incentive plans that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. Moreover, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Lastly, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job.

Voter Rationale: Directors are expected to attend all board meetings. Attendance is crucial for making valuable contributions to the board and fulfilling fiduciary duties. Also, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights.

In addition, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Moreover, this plan could lead to excessive dilution. Also, incentive plan features that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated.

Voter Rationale: For controlled companies, the board should include at least 33% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Given that there has been meaningful board refreshment during the year under review, support is warranted at this time and the matter will be kept under review.

2	Ratify Ernst & Young LLP as Auditors	Mgmt	For	Against

Voter Rationale: The company has engaged the same audit firm for more than 20 years. There is value for investors in gaining new perspectives on finances and controls. Companies that have had the same auditor for a long period of time should consider a plan or tender process for bringing in a new auditing firm, ideally every 10 years.

Voter Rationale: All exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders.

Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders.

	Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness.

Voter Rationale: We expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our expectation is that there be at least one female director on the board for a company of this size. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.
Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Lastly, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

Voter Rationale: Substantial pay-outs under incentive schemes should only be available for superior performance. Reaching threshold targets may warrant vesting of only a small proportion of incentive awards. Companies should not extend vesting periods or allow re-testing of performance targets because this weakens the effectiveness of incentive schemes. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Also, the company should put in place a procedure which would enable it, should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions on the part of any of its executive directors and other key managers which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders, to ensure that any funds wrongfully obtained in such manner are repaid to it.

Voter Rationale: On early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. In addition, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. Also, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Lastly, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

Voter Rationale: Variable remuneration and equity incentives should not be granted to non-executive directors as this may compromise their independence and ability to hold management accountable. Also, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, the company should put in place a procedure which would enable it, should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions on the part of any of its executive directors and other key managers which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders, to ensure that any funds wrongfully obtained in such manner are repaid to it.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. 2	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
	Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Likewise, the board should act with accountability to the investors it represents and take action where a substantial proportion have expressed concerns over compensation practices in previous years. Also, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Moreover, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Lastly, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, plan renewal should be subject to shareholder approval. Furthermore, this plan could lead to excessive dilution. In addition, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Lastly, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job.

Voter Rationale: The company should reduce director terms and implement either staggered election cycles or, ideally, annual re-elections, in order to facilitate a more dynamic board refreshment process. In addition, a vote AGAINST the discharge of the supervisory board (Item 4) is considered warranted because: - On July 8, 2021, the European Commission found the German automakers (including BMW) guilty of collusion regarding restricting competition in emissions cleaning for new diesel passenger cars between 2009 and 2014. - Concerns are raised with respect to the fact that a culture existed within this company which led to collusion on technical matters with the other major German car manufacturers to the detriment of the company and its shareholders, as well as stakeholders worldwide. While no specific member of the company's management board or supervisory board has thus far been found guilty of misconduct or negligence, the fact remains that for many years, there existed a corporate culture that allowed for the described facts to happen. - Due to the symbolic nature of the discharge vote in Germany and the historical nature of the antitrust case, and because the discharge resolution is currently bundled, which does not allow shareholders to target individuals who may have been involved in failures of due diligence from 2009 until 2014.

Voter Rationale: Significant salary increases should be linked to material changes in the business or in the role and responsibilities of executive directors. Also, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Further, companies should consider introducing deferral element and clawback provisions to the short- and long-term incentive schemes in line with market best practice. Moreover, substantial pay-outs under incentive schemes should only be available for superior performance. Reaching threshold targets may warrant vesting of only a small proportion of incentive awards.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Also, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. In addition, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. In addition, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Given that there has been meaningful board refreshment during the year under review, support is warranted at this time and the matter will be kept under review. Also, the board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate.

Voter Rationale: This plan could lead to excessive dilution. Furthermore, incentive plans that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. Also, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job.

The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. Specifically, CEO Buffett's compensation remains minimal, but two NEOs each continue to receive base salaries of $16.0 million, which are some of the largest base salaries paid to any executive at a U.S. public company, and overall executive pay lacks a measurable link to company performance. 	Voter Rationale: Executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. Specifically, CEO Buffett's compensation remains minimal, but two NEOs each continue to receive base salaries of $16.0 million, which are some of the largest base salaries paid to any executive at a U.S. public company, and overall executive pay lacks a measurable link to company performance. Pay disclosure is minimal, leaving shareholders with little information to assess decisions regarding, or committee oversight of, compensation determinations for executives.

Also, we voted against this director as a member of the audit committee because shareholders should be given the opportunity to approve the auditors annually.
1.9	Elect Director Susan L. Decker	Mgmt	For	Withhold
	Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, this director is not sufficiently independent to serve as the independent lead director. Given that there has been meaningful board refreshment during the year under review, support is warranted at this time and the matter will be kept under review. However, we will still oppose this nominee because, we voted against this director as a member of the audit committee because shareholders should be given the opportunity to approve the auditors annually. Furthermore, the company fails to disclose GHG emissions data and set reduction targets. Investors are unable to determine whether the company is adequately addressing material climate risks and opportunities. As of the 2022 Company Assessment, Berkshire Hathaway has not met any CA100+ net zero criteria. Accordingly, we are holding the LID and Chair of the Audit Committee responsible.

Also, we oppose dual class structures with impaired or enhanced voting rights. The company should amend its structure to allow for equal voting rights among shareholders. Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. In addition, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Furthermore, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Likely, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. In addition, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. In addition, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval.

	Voter Rationale: The roles of Chairman and CEO are substantially different and generally should be separated. Separation of roles is important for securing a proper balance between executives and outside shareholders and preserving accountability. In addition, executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Likewise, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Furthermore, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Also, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

	Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. In addition, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Given that there has been meaningful board refreshment during the year under review, support is warranted at this time and the matter will be kept under review. However, the lack of a robust anti-pledging policy is concerning and raises questions about audit committee effectiveness in carrying out its risk oversight function.&nbsp;; We encourage the committee to adopt a policy ideally prohibiting or severely restricting the pledging of company shares by executives.

Given that there has been meaningful board refreshment during the year under review, support is warranted at this time and the matter will be kept under review. Also, the company should move towards a three-committee structure (audit, compensation and nomination) in line with regional best practice, with independent board committees that report annually on their activities. Furthermore, the board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate. Moreover, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future. Given that the number of female directors has increased since the last AGM, we will keep this matter under review.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Furthermore, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. In addition, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. Lastly, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

This should be considered as part of their holistic approach to designing pay plans.

1.2	Elect Director Hugh M. Brown	Mgmt	For	Withhold

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness.

	Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. As well as, significant salary increases should be linked to material changes in the business or in the role and responsibilities of executive directors. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Likely, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Lastly, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.
	Voter Rationale: Reducing the strike price of options already granted after the stock price has fallen undermines any employee incentive strategy and is not aligned with the interests of shareholders. Moreover, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Also, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Furthermore, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Also, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. In addition, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

4	Approve Omnibus Stock Plan	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Furthermore, this plan could lead to excessive dilution.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Moreover, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. In addition, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Moreover, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Also, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Further, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Reaching threshold targets may warrant vesting of only a small proportion of incentive awards. Also, the company should put in place a procedure which would enable it, should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions on the part of any of its executive directors and other key managers which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders, to ensure that any funds wrongfully obtained in such manner are repaid to it.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness.

Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

	Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Voter Rationale: The company has highlighted retention, recruitment, and operational uncertainty as the main reason for the changes made to the executive remuneration program for the year. While the pandemic has significantly impacted the company's operations and made target-setting difficult, the CEO's total pay has increased, the fully discretionary annual bonus has paid out at maximum, resulting in a payout of $6 million for the CEO, and a 100% time-based equity grant valued at nearly $7.5 million has been granted, raising pay for performance concerns. While we understand that the pandemic has made goal setting difficult, the reversion to what is essentially a fully time based, discretionary program is problematic. Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders

The shareholder proposal at this meeting requests a 10% threshold for calling a special meeting, which we find supportable. Voter Rationale: Directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

Voter Rationale: The remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval.
Voter Rationale: The plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. In addition, incentive plans that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. Moreover, this plan could lead to excessive dilution.

Companies that have had the same auditor for a long period of time should consider a plan or tender process for bringing in a new auditing firm, ideally every 10 years.
3	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Furthermore, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

2	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, the board should act with accountability to the investors it represents and take action where a substantial proportion have expressed concerns over compensation practices in previous years. Also, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Furthermore, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Moreover, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Likewise, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. As well as, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Lastly, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

Voter Rationale: Executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. We have ongoing concerns with respect to large time-vesting stock option awards for the CEO, a lack of strongly performance-based long-term incentives, and changes to the CEO's annual incentive award for 2021, which weaken the link between payouts and objective performance goals. In addition, an amended employment agreement with an NEO provides for multi-year guaranteed equity awards.

Voter Rationale: Directors who represent major shareholders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key committees as their interests may not be well aligned with the wider group of shareholders. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval.

These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. In addition, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. In addition, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness.

	Voter Rationale: Directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Furthermore, Chevron's targets remain misaligned with a 1.5C scenario due to the failure to adequately address scope 3 emissions. The 2028 target is clearly inadequate and does not give us confidence the company is responding to shareholders wishes to address scope 3 emissions

	Voter Rationale: Directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, this director is not sufficiently independent to serve as the independent lead director. 	Voter Rationale: The roles of Chairman and CEO are substantially different and generally should be separated. Separation of roles is important for securing a proper balance between executives and outside shareholders and preserving accountability. Also, the board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate.
2	Ratify PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditors	Mgmt	For	Against
	Voter Rationale: The company has engaged the same audit firm for more than 20 years. There is value for investors in gaining new perspectives on finances and controls. Companies that have had the same auditor for a long period of time should consider a plan or tender process for bringing in a new auditing firm, ideally every 10 years.
3	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
	Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. In addition, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Also, this plan could lead to excessive dilution. In addition, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time.
5	Adopt Medium and Long-Term GHG Emissions Reduction Targets	SH	Against	For
Voter Rationale: Climate change presents ongoing and serious risks to shareholder value. Chevron's targets remain misaligned with a 1.5C scenario due to the failure to adequately address scope 3 emissions. The 2028 target is clearly inadequate and does not give us confidence the company is responding to shareholders' wishes to address scope 3 emissions.
6	Issue Audited Net-Zero Scenario Analysis Report	SH	Against	For
Voter Rationale: Climate change presents ongoing and serious risks to shareholder value. Chevron's disclosure lacks the detail and specifics to provide us with comfort that the company is adequately assessing these risks, thus we support this resolution calling for a more robust report.
7	Oversee and Report on Reliability of Methane Emission Disclosures	SH	For	For
Voter Rationale: Climate change presents ongoing and serious risks to shareholder value. Methane emissions remain an area of concern, and the accuracy of its disclosure is an issue for the entire sector, thus we support efforts to improve this.
8	Report on Business with Conflict-Complicit Governments	SH	Against	Abstain
Voter Rationale: Although we agree with the spirit of the proposal, at this time, we believe the company adequately discloses their processes in evaluating political, social, and human rights risks in conflict regions .
9	Oversee and Report a Racial Equity Audit	SH	Against	For
Voter Rationale: A racial equity audit would allow shareholders to better evaluate the company's management of potential racial equity or human rights concerns, including from pollution or GHG emissions, that are associated with its operations.
10	Reduce Ownership Threshold for Shareholders to Call Special Meeting	SH	Against	For
Voter Rationale: Holders of significant share capital should be entitled to call a special meeting. A total holding requirement of 5% is a suitable threshold to prevent abuse.

3	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
	Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Furthermore, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders

	Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Furthermore, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. Moreover, former employees or company founders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key board committees. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Likewise, the lack of a robust anti-pledging policy is concerning and raises questions about audit committee effectiveness in carrying out its risk oversight function.&nbsp; We encourage the committee to adopt a policy ideally prohibiting or severely restricting the pledging of company shares by executives. Lastly, executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. Despite the overwhelming support for an annual say-on-pay frequency at the 2017 annual meeting, the company maintains a triennial frequency and did not include a say-on-pay proposal on the ballot. PEO pay was outsized and is expected to remain very high for 2022. While the primary component of pay was performance-based awards, it is expected for awards of this size that the performance goals are significantly more rigorous and that the company provides an expanded rationale as to how the size of the awards was determined. In addition, bonuses are largely discretionary.

	Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, incentive plan features that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. Moreover, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Furthermore, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Also, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Moreover, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Also, companies should establish and disclose a policy on hedging of company stock by executives. Hedging activity by executives should be prohibited as it potentially severs management alignment with shareholder interest.

The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Also, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. In addition, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future.

Voter Rationale: Severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Also, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time. Moreover, significant salary increases should be linked to material changes in the business or in the role and responsibilities of executive directors. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Moreover, executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. While CEO pay declined year-over-year, concerns are raised regarding poor disclosure of the annual incentive program and a lack of strongly performance-based pay. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval.

Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. 2	Amend Omnibus Stock Plan	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, plan renewal should be subject to shareholder approval. Moreover, this plan could lead to excessive dilution. Furthermore, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Also, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Lastly, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders

Companies that have had the same auditor for a long period of time should consider a plan or tender process for bringing in a new auditing firm, ideally every 10 years.

Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Furthermore, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. Furthermore, this plan could lead to excessive dilution. Also, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Moreover, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time.

Voter Rationale: Incentive plans that allow for loans to exercise options are inconsistent with good practice and should be eliminated. In addition, on early termination, all share-based awards should be time pro-rated and tested for performance, including in the event of a change of control. Moreover, the plan improperly allows for accelerated vesting for an overly broad range of corporate restructuring scenarios and such provisions fail to reward performance. Rather, equity should be rolled forward into any successor company, or vest in a time-apportioned fashion only to the extent that performance conditions are met or if an executive loses his job. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should be clearly disclosed and include robust and stretching performance targets to reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time.

	Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Furthermore, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. Moreover, former employees or company founders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key board committees. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness.

Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Furthermore, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment. Moreover, directors with long board tenures should not serve on committees that require absolute independence. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Also, this director is not sufficiently independent to serve as the independent lead director. In addition, the board imposed a forum selection clause without prior shareholder approval. The corporate governance committee should oppose measures that restrict investors' access to courts, and reverse the measure or, at the very least, put the matter to an investor vote.

Voter Rationale: The lack of a robust anti-pledging policy is concerning and raises questions about audit committee effectiveness in carrying out its risk oversight function. Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Likely, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Furthermore, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Voter Rationale: Companies should provide sufficient information at least 21 days in advance of the meeting to enable shareholders to cast an informed vote.
5	Elect Directors	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The board should submit directors for re-election individually, rather than as a single slate and ensure that there is sufficient level of independence on the board. Moreover, executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. Furthermore, the remuneration committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Likewise, the nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Consequently, in the context of increasingly complex international accounting standards, the audit committee benefits from members who have a good and recent understanding of the accounting rules and of the audit process. Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Furthermore, incentive awards to executives should include robust performance targets that reward strong performance and drive shareholder value over a sufficiently long period of time defined as at least three years. Also, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Furthermore, boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The nominating committee should take action to ensure an appropriately fresh board and reduce the proportion of long standing directors to reduce the risk of entrenchment.

3	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The plan's structure and pay-for-performance results are not sufficiently strong. Good practices include: well disclosed and stretching performance targets; performance less than p/greater than Triggers for equity awards; using different metrics for the short and long-term plans; measuring company outcomes against its appropriate peer group; and setting awards so that executives are not rewarded for below-average performance. These and other approaches will ensure that the compensation committee designs compensation packages that build shareholder value over time. In addition, a larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Moreover, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Furthermore, the remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Also, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs

The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. The nomination committee should be majority independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Furthermore, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future. Also, executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time. Given the company's persistent poor compensation practices. In addition to long-standing compensation concerns, the board recently entered into a new employment agreement with CEO Zaslav which contains a problematic severance arrangement and provides for approximately $200 million in stock options, in addition to his annual compensation. Lastly, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents and the classified board, each of which adversely impacts shareholder rights. Also, directors are elected in classes rather than annually, but shareholders should have the opportunity to communicate with directors regularly on their performance. The board should take immediate steps to declassify itself, thereby enhancing accountability.

Voter Rationale: The remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. Voter Rationale: Boards where more than a third of directors have served for more than 12 years lack balance. The audit committee should be fully independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. Voter Rationale: Changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board's failure to remove, or subject to a reasonable sunset requirement, the dual-class capital structure and the classified board, which adversely impacts shareholder rights. In addition, we expect companies to have policies in place to increase racial and gender diversity on the board. Our minimum expectation is that female directors comprise at least 25% of board members for a company of this size, with an aspiration to achieve 30% in the future. Given that the departure was recent, we will keep the matter under review. Voter Rationale: The company has engaged the same audit firm for more than 20 years. There is value for investors in gaining new perspectives on finances and controls. Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Separation of roles is important for securing a proper balance between executives and outside shareholders and preserving accountability. Also, executive officers are expected to hold no more than one external directorships to ensure they have sufficient time and energy to discharge their roles properly, particularly during unexpected company situations requiring substantial amounts of time. Moreover, the board should appoint a Lead Independent Director to establish appropriate checks and balances on the Board, support the Chairman, ensure orderly succession process for the Chairman, and act as a point of contact for shareholders, non-executive directors and senior executives where normal channels of communication through the board Chairman are considered inappropriate.

2	Ratify Deloitte & Touche LLP as Auditors	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The company has engaged the same audit firm for more than 20 years. There is value for investors in gaining new perspectives on finances and controls. Companies that have had the same auditor for a long period of time should consider a plan or tender process for bringing in a new auditing firm, ideally every 10 years.
3	Advisory Vote to Ratify Named Executive Officers' Compensation	Mgmt	For	Against
Voter Rationale: The remuneration committee should not allow vesting of incentive awards for below median performance as this is considered to be rewarding under performance of peers. In addition, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. All exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs.
4	Reduce Ownership Threshold for Shareholders to Call Special Meeting	SH	Against	For
Voter Rationale: Holders of significant share capital should be entitled to call a special meeting. A total holding requirement of 5% is a suitable threshold to prevent abuse.

Voter Rationale: A larger percentage of the equity awards should be tied to performance conditions. At least 50% is a minimum good practice. Also, severance payments should not exceed two times annual pay. Larger severance packages should be subject to a separate shareholder approval. Moreover, all exceptional awards should be clearly linked to performance and demonstrate shareholder value creation in addition to and above that expected of directors as a normal part of their jobs. In addition, the company should put clawback provisions in place to enable it to re-coup funds should it identify any facts of manipulation of reported indicators or other bad faith actions which were detrimental to the long-term interests of its shareholders. Voter Rationale: For widely held companies, the board should include at least 50% independent non-executive directors to ensure appropriate balance of independence and objectivity. Also, directors who represent major shareholders are not sufficiently independent to serve on key committees as their interests may not be well aligned with the wider group of shareholders.. The compensation committee should be independent and this director's membership could hamper the committee's impartiality and effectiveness. In addition, changes in company bylaws or articles of incorporation should not erode shareholders' rights and should be subject to shareholder approval. Specifically, the board failed to remove, or subject to a sunset requirement, the classified board and the supermajority vote requirement to enact certain changes to the governing documents, each of which adversely impact shareholder rights. Moreover, executive pay is not in line with company performance. The compensation committee should do more to respond to best practices in pay that help establish compensation packages that reward strong performance and build shareholder value over time.
